TIMES SUGGESTS WAY TO BOOST BROCKTON FUND

Chairman John T. Meany, of the finance committee of the Brockton-Washington championship duckpin series, has asked The Times to aid in securing contributions from the bowlers of Washington to finance the local team in its trip to Brockton, and here is a method, which if pursued by all of the bowling alley proprietors of Washington is sure to send the fund soaring.

Let every bowling alley in the city stage one of the popular "threeball" tournaments, the nominal entrance fee in which will be 25 cents, which entitles the bowler to roll three duckpin balls at a frame of tenpins. Strikes and spares are not to count, the highest score, therefore being 30. Let five prizes of $5, $4, $3, $2, and $1 be offered for high totals. If started immediately the tournaments may run one week or special nights may be designated. The Times will make announcements of all alley owners who fall in with this suggestion and will keep the respective tournaments and their progress, well before the public. Here is a chance for you big-hearted bowlers to "prove-up."

'HEALTH FACTORY' TO BE SIMPLE OUTSIDE

Emergency Hospital Committee Explains Necessity of Expensive Interior Equipment.

"A modern hospital is a health factory and not an art museum, and with this idea in view, the external appearance of the New Emergency Hospital has been kept simple and dignided, with enough coloring, glass surfaces, and planting, to give it a cheerful aspect. If the architectural appearance of the exterior has been subdued, it has been with the idea of devoting as much as possible of the available funds to the comfort and convenience of the patients, octors, and nurses in the interior arrangements and mechanical equip-

This statement is made by the building committee in charge of the plans for the new Central Dispensory and Emergency Hospital, in a pamphlet describing the structure and giving an accounting of the funds which have seen raised to provide new and larger quarters for the institution,

The new hospital is to be erected on the north side of New York avenue, between Seventeenth and highteenth streets northwest. The hospital has acquired property fronting on F street, the rear of which adjoins that of the site of the nurses, home. The plans have been prepared by Nathan C. Wyeta, and the building contract awarded to Wells Bros. A large force of workmen already is engaged in excavating for For the entire project $315,371 will be needed, according to an estimate of the building committee. Of this amount $155,500 is now available, including a Congressional appropriation of $50,000 and cash raised from citizens amounting to $85,000. There are pledges amounting to $46,000, of which the committee believes at least $36,000 can be collected.
